2021 Longwood Gardens Community Read

The Home Place: Memoirs of a Colored Man's Love Affair with Nature

"The Home Place, by J. Drew Lanham, is a remarkable meditation on nature and belonging. This is at once a deeply moving memoir and a riveting exploration of the contradictions of black identity in the rural South -- and in America today." (Provided by publisher.)

The Hear Me Out civic dialogue program works to get at the heart of the issues that we face. Through holistic fact-setting and discussion questions centered on listening and storytelling, our program has worked to create virtual dialogue spaces that give participants the opportunity to foster authentic and personal points of connections in a time of disconnect. Despite the uncertainty that this new year still holds, Hear Me Out is committed to creating virtual spaces that directly engage with pertinent local and national issues across distance and difference.

This month we are exploring the culture, people and history of ICELAND!

Iceland is an island country located in the North Atlantic Ocean. It is defined by its dramatic landscape with volcanoes, geysers, hot springs and lava fields. Massive glaciers, such as Vatna Glacier are protected in Vatnajökull and Snæfellsjökull national parks.

Listen to a video interview with our special guest, Miss Lori, who has visited Iceland. She will share interesting facts about the country, the people and what it is like to live there.

YOU CAN HELP!

Clothing & Book Donation Project

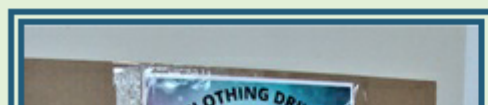

The Coy Public Library of Shippensburg is hosting two Foster Care books & clothing donation boxes for a university class project. Shippensburg University students Caitlin Demski (a Coy Library page), Emily McNamee, Taylor Schmalz, and Lily Simmons are collecting gently used or new books and clothing from infant to childrens and teen sizes to donate to Family United Network and Cumberland County Child Protective Services.

Team members shared that they know people who work in the foster care system, or are trying to adopt, and have heard stories of children walking into foster care with only the clothes on their back. The team hopes to build awareness and provide items to foster-care children to meet day-to-day needs and help them thrive. Upon completion of their project, the team will summarize their project and its outcomes in class.

Foster Care Drive is a project that helps our foster care systems in need of items such as clothing and books and other small items that children in the foster care system need to thrive on a day to day basis. Clothing needs include: pajamas, leggings, or daytime clothes (newborn through size 16).

There are two donation boxes, one located inside each entrance into the library.

Look for the collection boxes at the entrances to the library.

LIBRARY SPOTLIGHT

Many Thanks to Our Board of Trustees

Meet Coy Library Board Member Megan Mancino

Megan began her tenure as a Board Trustee for the Coy Public Library of Shippensburg in February 2021 after being nominated by a colleague from the Shippensburg Area School District. She will be involved with the Public Relations and Cumberland County Library System committees. Megan graduated from Juniata College in 2002 and came to Shippensburg to begin her career. Libraries have always played an essential role in Megan's life. She has especially fond memories of volunteering at the library throughout her graduate work with Shippensburg University and participating in story times, summer reading programs, and Read to Dogs with her own daughters, Natalie (11) and Anna (8).

Megan is dedicated to serving the community of Shippensburg. She and her husband are both educators in the district and have strong ties within the community. Megan is passionate about literacy and looks forward to fostering connections between students in the Shippensburg Area School District and the many wonderful programs and resources offered by the Coy Public Library.
